Dear assistant chief of dermatology,

As a high school senior, I have zero education or experience in the medical field. However, what I lack in experience, I make up for in energy and customer service. I can offer a fresh, new perspective. Allowing me to work in your office would be an extremely beneficial, learning opportunity.

For the past year, I have worked a high profile job at Chick-Fil-A. On the job, I provide the best customer service possible to please our guests. The fast pace environment pushes me to work fast and effectively. The opportunity the cooperation has given me is priceless, and I would not trade it for anything. I believe that excitement and good customer service is a necessity for any job and can even be applicable in the medical field. If I were blessed with the chance to work next to successful doctors, it would be a once in a life time learning experience.

I am interested in the medical field because doctors are individuals who can change a persons life. They are like mini superheros, people who can do the impossible like bring the dead back to life. While I am not going into cardio thoracic surgery, I do believe that dermatology is just as important to saving someones life. Dermatology tackles the face that we present to the world. The skin gives us clues if there are any issues occuring on the inside. It is an underrated specialty that is also responsible for taking care of people's health.

I look forward to talking with you, and sharing my innovative perspective on all things related to the medical field. Thank you for taking the time out of your busy schedule to consider me, Marissa Hamilton, an up and coming physician for the position.

Sincerely,

Marissa Hamilton
